- You will need to have met with your high school counselor first to go over what classes you will be approved to take as a dual enrollment student
- Your high school counselor must complete their part of the GAFutures Participation Agreement and courses(s) to be taken

AP vs Dual Enrollment

- AP is recognized nationwide.
- Students must take and pass AP exam to receive college credit.
- Students must pay for AP exam (some free test options available).
- Students with the highest ACT and SAT scores tend to take the most AP classes.
- Which is more important, getting ahead or being prepared?
