East Georgia State College Amorous Relationships Policy

East Georgia State College is committed to providing a safe, amicable, and harassment free environment for all faculty, staff and students. The Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia affirms the importance of the professional obligations of faculty and staff in the performance of their duties. The USG Ethics Policy Code of Conduct states that all employees should treat fellow employees, students and the public with dignity and respect. When one party stands in a professional relationship towards the other, or stands in a position of authority over the other, even an apparently consensual amorous relationship may lead to sexual harassment or other breaches of professional obligations.

I. Relationships
   a. Students
   Faculty and staff members are prohibited from having an amorous relationship with a student who the faculty or staff supervises, teaches or evaluates in any way. “Faculty” is defined as teaching faculty, including tenured, tenure track, non-tenure track, instructors, lecturers and part time instructors.
   b. Employees
   The Board of Regents also prohibits employees from having amorous relationships with any other employee if either employee supervises, evaluates, or in any other way directly affects the terms or conditions of the other’s employment.
   c. Recusal
   Anyone involved in an amorous relationship with someone over whom he or she has supervisory power must recuse himself or herself from decisions that affect compensation, evaluation, employment conditions, instruction, and/or academic status of the subordinate involved.

A. Notification
Any individual in authority who is or has been involved in an amorous relationship with a person whom they may be called upon to evaluate must promptly report this fact to his or her supervisor. This reporting obligation applies to individuals in authority in the employer – employee relationship and the faculty-student relationship.

B. Exception for Approved Supervisory Arrangements
The supervisor will then arrange that the individual in authority does not evaluate nor participate in discussions and decisions that affect compensation, evaluation, employment conditions, instruction, and/or academic status of the subordinate involved. This new supervision arrangement will be in writing, consented to by the parties to the relationship and the supervisor(s) involved.

Any person who believes that a faculty member, administrator or other employee is involved in an amorous relationship with a person under his or her direct authority or supervision may report this to the supervisor of the individual in authority. The supervisor will investigate the report and take appropriate action. Persons may also report such relationships through the Ethics and Compliance Reporting Hotline at https://ega.alertline.com/gcs/welcome
II. Sanctions
Any individual who violates this policy is subject to disciplinary action commensurate with the offense, up to and including termination. East Georgia State College may elect to have such matters reported to the Title IX Coordinator. East Georgia State College may take appropriate action when disruptive conduct, job performance problems or actions that reflect poorly on the institution result from amorous relationships.

In addition to this policy, the Conflict of Interest, Nepotism and Employment of Relatives policies of East Georgia State College and the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia apply to faculty and staff.